Design Explanation for SevillaTatis

The SevillaTatis application primarily incorporates the colors of the Seville flag to reflect the identity and culture of the city. My main goal for the project was to create an application that is not only visually appealing but also highly accessible and easy to use, ensuring that anyone can navigate and interact with it effortlessly.

To achieve this, I utilized Figma to design the mockups, allowing me to visualize and refine the layout before implementation. Throughout the design process, I focused on accessibility and user comfort. For instance:

- Button Design: I ensured that buttons are consistently large and clearly distinguishable. To improve usability, the button colors were chosen to contrast significantly with the rest of the page, making them easy to spot and interact with.
- Mobile-First Approach: I designed the application with a mobile-first strategy. This means the interface was optimized for smaller screens first, ensuring seamless usability on mobile devices. For larger screens, the elements adapt dynamically through responsive layouts. This includes adjusting sizes and spacing between elements to maintain a balanced and functional design on all devices.

These design decisions reflect my commitment to creating an application that is both functional and user-friendly, regardless of the device or user experience level.

The Flag

The motto NO8DO is one of Seville's most iconic symbols, featured on its flag and coat of arms. Its most widely accepted interpretation is "It has not abandoned me," referencing the city's loyalty to King Alfonso X the Wise during a rebellion led by his son, Sancho IV. The "8" in the motto represents a skein of yarn (a nod to weaving), forming a clever wordplay: "No-madeja-do." This motto symbolizes Seville's pride and loyalty to its

History and culture

Seville, the capital of Andalusia, boasts a history spanning over 2,000 years. Founded as the Roman city of Hispalis, it later became a significant Moorish hub before being reclaimed during the Christian Reconquest. This blend of cultures has shaped the city's iconic landmarks, such as the Giralda, the Alcázar, and the Archivo de Indias, all recognized as UNESCO World Heritage Sites. Seville is also the birthplace of flamenco, a passionate art form echoing its rich cultural heritage. The city's festivals, such as Holy Week (Semana Santa) and the April Fair (Feria de Abril), attract visitors worldwide, offering a unique glimpse into Andalusian

Who we are

My name is Pablo Sánchez Gómez, I was born in Seville, I study Computer Engineering in Seville, and I started my degree because I am passionate about technology and the world you can discover through it. I am currently doing a half-year Erasmus in Cesena, Italy. I chose this destination because I was very interested in Italy, its gastronomy, and culture, and I wanted to get to know the country more deeply.

Sevillatatis comes from a project for the Web-related Technologies course, which gave me the freedom to choose any project I wanted. My goal is to spark my professors' interest in visiting Seville, just as I have visited and enjoyed their country and city. Additionally, I want to show a little bit of my love for Seville.
